New Editor Appointed for the Recreational Sports Journal

Dr. Paul Milton succeeds Dr. Lynn Jamieson, editor since 2002.

by Sarah Hubert, Communications Specialist and Editor, NIRSA National Center Team

Dr. Paul Milton of Kent State University has been selected as editor for the NIRSA Foundation’s Recreational Sports Journal. He will assume the duties of a three-year term beginning May 1, 2005.

A member of the National Intramural-Recreational Sports Association since 1976, Milton is a prolific writer and presenter who has served on the editorial board of the Recreational Sports Journal for the past fifteen years. He was selected for the editorship by a three-member selection committee in December, 2004.

“The call I received from Mark Fletcher, informing me I was the committee’s selection for editor was one of the best phone calls I have ever received in my professional career,” Milton declares.

“We are extremely pleased and excited to have Dr. Paul Milton assume the editor role for the RSJ,” says Mark Fletcher, Chair of the NIRSA Foundation. “The selection committee was fortunate to have had some great candidates to choose from in this process. We look forward to Paul’s leadership and expertise in building on the previous efforts of Dr. Lynn Jamieson [CRSS, Indiana University] and Dr. Gary Miller [CRSS, University of Illinois, Urbana/Champaign] in the true NIRSA spirit of serving fellow NIRSA colleagues.”

Milton is very enthusiastic about his new role.

“It has been nearly a career-long goal to become editor of the Journal. I have followed the Journal since its inception (1977) and I became one of the reviewers in 1989 after applying for the editorship. The President, Judi Bryant, and others, felt that I did not have quite the background to be editor, so she asked me if I would consider joining the Editorial Board as a referee. I agreed, and have been on the Board ever since. Dr. Gary Miller was appointed editor and Judi and the others definitely made the right choice. Dr. Miller took the Journal to a higher level. He is the one who created the current excellence between articles that are practically based, and those that are empirically based,” he says.

“During my tenure on the editorial board, I am proud to say that I had some part of turning the RSJ into what may many consider to be an excellent blend of empirical and anecdotal or how-to type articles that serve the need for practitioner-based research, as well as providing a solid scientific, discovery-based orientation. I believe that I not only can continue this direction, but can strengthen it,” Milton says.

“I also hope that recreational sports professionals, and sport/recreation management faculty, will continue to increase the level and scope of inquiry in our field. Recreational sports is a field just waiting to explode with rich, quality research. We have a small but growing body of empirically-based researchers who are beginning to answer, scientifically, some of the most fundamental issues of our profession. It is an exciting time to be RSJ editor; to be able to preside over the next phase of research in our field is an incredible, and humbling, honor,” he says.

“I also hope to continue the work of selecting the outstanding writing award to deserving RSJ contributors, and perhaps expand on that by providing a monetary award. It would be my hope that this would help enhance both the quantity and quality of the submissions to the RSJ. I also would like to work closely with the Editorial Board, as needed and desired, to continue to develop more consistent editing techniques. We also need to refresh the list of current topics upon which authors may consider writing,” he adds.

A native Californian, Milton grew up in the Sacramento area.

“I got my bachelor’s from UC Davis... in history of all things. It was helpful, however, because I did a lot of reading and writing, which is certainly a big part of the editor’s job,” he adds.

He received his master’s degree from Michigan State in Intramural Administration, and his doctor of philosophy in education (with a major in higher education administration, and a minor in sport administration) from Kent State University in May 2002.
Milton’s career path has been similar to many NIRSA members [see full vita attached].

“At UC Davis, having played in high school, I went out for the baseball team. I joined my dormitory’s Intramural softball team. After finding it an enjoyable experience, it didn’t take too much convincing from my roommate to get involved from another perspective: that of intramural flag football official. Soon I was the Coordinator of Officials, and then on to graduate school to get a degree that would educate me to be a recreational sports administrator.”

In 1992, Milton became Director of Recreational Services where some of his recent accomplishments include:

- Involvement in strategic planning including the creation and implementation of a five-year operating plan for the department that encompassed FY 2003-2007
- Led the conception, planning, opening, and continuing operation of the $25 million Student Recreation and Wellness Center for Kent State University
- Developed the department’s current capital project: a $2 million Outdoor Adventure Complex
- Generated more than $1.3 million in non-student fee revenue in FY 2004; created and enhanced departmental Foundation accounts

As editor of a newsletter for the Division of Student Affairs at Kent State, Milton recently accepted an invitation by the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators to serve as a referee for the 2005 NASPA Conference proposals; he also serves on NIRSA’s National School of Recreational Sports Management (NSRSM) Faculty.

Milton contributed a chapter to the forthcoming Essential of Campus Recreation (working title), a NIRSA book to be published with Human Kinetics, Inc., NIRSA’s official publisher. Most of his numerous research articles have been published in NIRSA publications. He has presented on “Writing for Publication” at Annual Conference and will do so again in Orlando in April.

Paul and his wife Pat have been married for nearly 21 years.

“We have no children, but do have two high energy, and very high maintenance dogs. My wife is a nationally ranked amateur golfer (Yes, she can beat me!), and is still active in several state and national events each year. She has played in three U.S. Opens, got to the semifinals twice in the USGA Amateur, and once in the USGA Mid-amateur. We travel together frequently, and I have spent a lot of my time at the tournaments as her caddie.”

Milton adds, “My favorite spectator sport is baseball; we are part of a group that has season’s tickets to the Cleveland Indians (although I am a die-hard Dodger fan). My favorite participatory sport is….golf….of course. I carry a ten handicap at Firestone (and by the way, my wife is a plus one handicap)!”
Campus recreation directors from eighteen Big Ten and Pac-10 schools assembled January 12-14 in Corvallis, Oregon, the home of the NIRSA National Center (NNC), for meetings and facility tours. Among the activities on the agenda, in addition to business meetings, were tours of facilities at Oregon State University and the University of Oregon, a reception and banquet, and a luncheon hosted by NNC team members. Three of the Big Ten directors were unfortunately unable to attend: Kathy Bayless, Indiana University (Bloomington), Dale Carruthers, University of Wisconsin (Madison), and Jesse “Tony” Clements, University of Illinois (Urbana/Champaign).

Celebrate National Recreational Sports & Fitness Day on Tuesday, February 22, 2005

The idea to celebrate National Recreational Sports & Fitness Day every February 22 evolved from a proclamation by the Association’s members in April 1999. February 22, 1950, is NIRSA’s founding date, when twenty-two African-American men and women intramural directors from eleven Historically Black Colleges formed the National Intramural Association (NIA), which became NIRSA in 1975. NIRSA invites its members, local citizens, and all organizations to unite in calling attention to the healthy benefits gained from participation in recreational sports and fitness and wellness programs. For ideas, samples of proclamations, forms, waivers, press releases, and everything you need to celebrate this important day, visit the NIRSA Network at http://www.nirsa.net/calendar/nnd/index.htm.

Bring Your Boss to the 2005 Annual Conference & Recreational Sports Exposition in Orlando

A NIRSA tradition, the Bring Your Boss program (BYB) provides a unique and valuable opportunity to administrators in higher education who serve outside the recreation profession. By attending the 2005 NIRSA Conference & Recreational Sports Exposition in Orlando, your boss will gain insight into the contributions you make as a recreation professional in the areas of recruitment, retention and overall student satisfaction at your institution—and all by registering at your NIRSA conference rate! So, come on and BYB, because this conference is definitely not limited to the concerns of just one department on your campus!

Many speakers, presentations and educational sessions will offer special appeal to your boss. The Opening General Session speaker, Dr. Richard B. Flynn, president of Springfield College, will address the presidential perspective on campus recreation and many other topics in “Your President: A Campus Recreation Advocate or Critic?” Credentialed professional speaker Bruce Christopher, opening the Second General Session, will offer strategies for revitalizing workplace performance and morale through communication in his address: “Why Are Women So Strange and Men So Weird? Communicating Effectively.”

The roster of invited professional speakers and their diverse array of topics includes:

- Dr. Mary Frances Arnold, an educational consultant, directing three sessions on the topics of leadership, diversity and multiculturalism, and effective communication.
- Dr. Carolyn E. Cornelison, director of the Campus Alcohol and Drug Information Center at Florida State University, presenting a comprehensive discussion of alcohol abuse prevention, and methods of reaching students with prevention messages, intervention techniques and education.
- Patti Holmes, president of Holmes Training and Development, offering two sessions on leadership and on building an “attitude of excellence”.
- Dr. Dennis P. Kimbro, president, P. Kimbro Group, discussing human potential in a session entitled “Vision: Everything Happens to You Twice in Life”.
- Dr. Stacy Nelson, director of Pathways to Potential and manager of Organizational Development at Celebration Health Hospital, presenting two sessions designed to positively http://www.nirsa.info/know/index_2ndarticles.htm

Members of the Panel are:

- Carol Price, president of “Professionally Speaking,” leading training two sessions entitled “Stress, It Makes Me Nuts: Stop It!” and “Whale Done! The Power of Positive Relationships.”

A Vice Presidents’ Panel will feature presentations, answer questions, and mediate general discussion on the topic of “Perspectives About the Role of Recreational Sports in Higher Education.” Members of the Panel are:

- Dr. James Turman (Moderator), Assistant Vice Provost for Student Affairs, University of Minnesota-Twin Cities
- Dr. Judith Bryant, Vice President for Student Affairs, North Georgia College and State University
- Dr. Joe Paul, Vice President for Student Affairs, the University of Southern Mississippi
- Dr. Eliseo Torres, Vice President for Student Affairs, University of New Mexico
- Victor Wilson, Senior Vice President of Student Affairs, College of Charleston

Rounding out the program is a multitude of Educational Sessions that will address issues of vital importance to all professionals in higher learning. A complete list of sessions is available at http://www.nirsa.net/education/conference_daily_ed_sessions.htm.

As you browse through the 2005 Conference Program, a BYB icon will direct your attention to items of special interest to your boss. And keep in mind that we’ve lined up lots of fun options in Orlando as well! A fantastic day of golf at the Shingle Creek Golf Club is scheduled at the NIRSA Foundation Golf Tournament, and Theme Night this year will take place at the spectacular SeaWorld Adventure Park. 2005 is a great year to BYB—and your boss will thank you for it! Look for BYB on the registration form for information about special pricing.

2004 National Marketing Institute Garners Great Reviews From Attendees

See Attendee Evaluation results here, and plan now to attend the 2006 event!

The results are in and by all accounts the 2004 NIRSA National Marketing Institute was a very successful event. Held every two years, this year’s event in downtown Seattle at the Red Lion Hotel on December 1-3 follows upon the success of the first two institutes in Las Vegas, 2000, and in New Orleans, 2002. The seventy-seven attendees chose from basic and advanced tracks which each provided professionals and students alike with an expert perspective on the ins and outs of marketing. Excellent keynote speakers, assorted workshops, and networking opportunities with other professionals in the field of recreational sports marketing added to the appeal of this Institute. As NIRSA Member Institutions continue to expand their facilities and programs, the role of marketing and promotions, and the popularity of this Institute, will continue to grow. Look for details on the 2006 NIRSA National Marketing Institute later this year.

A Zoomerang survey was launched soon after the 2004 Institute to gather feedback and to provide an opportunity for suggestions to improve the next Institute in 2006.

Join in the Success of the Career Opportunities Center for 2005

Recently the NIRSA Foundation Board gathered in Tempe, Arizona, for their Midyear meeting and voted unanimously to support the Career Opportunity Center (COC) with funds amounting to $50,000 over the next five years. This significant commitment demonstrates the Foundation’s continuing focus on providing the NIRSA membership with the very best opportunities for student and professional development. Due to this generous financial support from the NIRSA Foundation, member fees for both job recruiters and candidates have been significantly reduced.

Over the past three years, with Foundation support, the COC has offered 981 jobs to 1,026 candidates who registered for interviews with 433 institutions through the candidate service. In 2004 there were more jobs than candidates!

The COC, held during the 2004 NIRSA Annual Conference and Recreational Sports Exposition in Albuquerque, New Mexico, last April, was very successful for both candidates and the employers. Total COC employers who presented were 160. Candidates served numbered 391.

The 2005 NIRSA Foundation COC will begin five days of operation on Tuesday, April 5, with improved services for both candidates and employers. BluefishJobs.com will contribute to the success of individuals looking for graduate assistantships, internships and full- or part-time positions.

For more information on hours of operation, fees, presentation rooms, and BluefishJobs.com posting prices before you arrive, please link to: http://www.nirsanet/education/conference.htm, and view the Conference Registration Brochure or contact the NIRSA National Center at (541) 766-8211 before April 1, 2005.

Schedule Announced for the National School of Recreational Sports Management, Level II

The National School of Recreational Sports Management Level II returns June 7-10, 2005, in Hilton Head Island, South Carolina. The NSRSM Level II curriculum is designed specifically for experienced mid-and-upper level administrators who want to sharpen their management skills. Experienced faculty members who are leaders in the field of recreational sports develop the curriculum and present sessions that provide participants with opportunities to practice, discuss and refine the professional skills necessary for success. A top-notch faculty, combined with the ability to collaborate with fellow recreational sports professionals, makes this a wonderful professional development experience. The course is limited to forty eight attendees, and won’t be offered again until 2008. You can register online at https://chloris.safe-order.net/nirsanet/forms/app_school.htm. This year’s complete schedule follows:

Tuesday, June 7
- 8:15 a.m.-9:00 a.m. Morning Refreshments/Registration
- 9:00 a.m.-10:00 a.m. Welcome: Orientation & Icebreakers
- 10:00 a.m.-10:15 a.m. Break
- 10:15 a.m.-12:15 p.m. Professional Ethics
NIRSA needs two professionals to serve on the faculty of the National School of Recreational Sports Management. Applicants must have two years of continuous NIRSA membership, a minimum of three years at a managerial or administrative level in a recreational sport, corporate or public setting and proven presentation or teaching experience. If selected, the successful candidate’s attendance would be required at a faculty meeting immediately following the annual NSRSM Level II event June 7-10, 2005 in Hilton Head, South Carolina. In addition, it is preferred that applicants have experience supervising full-time employees and are themselves graduates of the NIRSA NSRSM (level II) or past participants in the NIRSA Executive Institute. The faculty position is a three-year voluntary commitment.

Applications are available from the NIRSA Network at http://www.nirsa.net/education/school.htm and must be submitted to the NNC by February 11, 2005. The NIRSA Board of Directors will approve faculty appointments by April 29, 2005.

CRSS Work Team to Examine Program: Five Testing Dates Remain

In the fall of 2004, there were two major NIRSA Board of Director decisions regarding the Certified Recreational Sports Specialist (CRSS) exam. The NIRSA two-year membership requirement to take the exam was eliminated on September 21, 2004. This change is necessary to bring NIRSA into compliance with federal antitrust laws concerning application requirements for professional credentialing programs.

The second change took place in October where NIRSA's BOD voted to suspend CRSS exam offerings beginning June 30, 2005. The BOD charged the Professional Registry Work Team to move forward with a registry proposal that would not include the current CRSS exam, and appointed a work team to study the current CRSS program.

The newly formed CRSS Work Team consists of: John Kroll (Chair), East Tennessee State

NIRSA Flag Football 2004 Regional Championships a Big Success

NIRSA would like to thank all of the NIRSA endorsed Regional Flag Football hosts for events that took place in October and November 2004. A big thank you goes to the Recreational Sports staff at Arizona State University, Sam Houston State University, University of Maryland, The Ohio State University, University of Southern Mississippi and Tennessee Tech University. The willingness of professional and student members who traveled to help make these events so successful is greatly appreciated. Results from these events can be found at http://www.nirsarhoe.com/flag/football/2004/index.htm.

'04 Soccer Sport Club Tourney: Championships Finish Play in Arizona

After considerable review of the weather-shortened tournament in Austin, Texas, last November, NIRSA extended invitations to the twenty-four teams that did not finish play in the Soccer Sport Club Championships to complete their matches. The final play in the Men’s Championship Division, with three teams competing, took place Saturday, January 8, 2005, at the Red Mountain Soccer Complex, in Mesa, Arizona. Because the other four divisions (Men’s Open, Men's Consolation, Women’s Open and Women’s Championship) did not receive a commitment from at least three-quarters of the remaining teams to compete in Arizona, these divisions will not crown a champion for 2004. The NNC received an overwhelmingly positive response from student athletes, coaches, parents, and members for the offer to complete play.

The rain seemed to follow this event. Phoenix received their total annual rainfall for 2005 during the week prior to the event. Staff from Arizona State and the NNC were scrambling to find turf fields in the Phoenix area for back-up. The rain held off, so teams were able to play on as scheduled. Results can be found on the NIRSA website for the Men’s Championship Division, in which Texas A&M was crowned champion, and Colorado State “A” was runner-up. UC Berkeley was the third competing team.

A huge “thanks” goes out to Howard Taylor and Doug Ewing at Arizona State University, Recreational Sports for setting up the logistics of the final games, as well as to Randall Ford (The University of Texas at Austin), Chad Ellsworth (Arizona State University), and Noah Yannie (Palms Beach Atlantic University), for helping out during the event.

'05 USA Team Tennis National Campus Championship Slated for March

The 6th annual USA Team Tennis National Campus Championship presented by the United States Tennis Association, NIRSA and the Intercollegiate Tennis Association will be contested on March 10-12, 2005, at the Barnes Tennis Center in San Diego, California. Information can be found at http://www.nirsarhoe.com/sc/tennis/2005/index.htm or contact Valerie McCutchan at the NNC: valerie@nirsarhoe.org or (541) 766-8211 ext. 15.

Enter Now for '05 NIRSA Collegiate Volleyball Sport Club Championships

The 21st Annual Volleyball Championships will return to Bartle Hall Convention Center (the site of the 2001 championships) in Kansas City, Missouri, April 14-16, 2005. Volleyball club teams can print off the entry packet and forms from the NIRSA Network (http://www.nirsarhoe.com/volleyball/2005/index.htm). Entries will be accepted between January 3 and March 4, 2005. Institutional Member schools will receive priority in their entry consideration, if their complete entry is received by February 18, 2005. ALL divisions are expected to fill, and 240 men’s and women’s teams will be seeded into the appropriate division, depending on their university enrollment as well as their skill level. The preseason rankings were posted on January 7, 2005, and can be viewed online. Molten is once again the Official Ball, and can be purchased by downloading the order form, from the NIRSA Network. NIRSA members interested in volunteering at the championships, should contact Valerie McCutchan (valerie@nirsa.org) as soon as possible.

T-shirt & Apparel Competition, Auction & Sale

Support the NIRSA Foundation With T-shirts! This popular fundraiser will once again be one of the conference’s high points, generating significant traffic in the registration area and the Exhibit Hall. Join the fun and promote your institution’s recreation department by entering donated items in the competition. T-shirts will be judged for the annual quilt project which supports the Quilt Raffle.

Please bring two of each item for entry in the T-Shirt/Apparel Competition at the Annual Conference. One winning shirt will be included in the quilt for the 2006 quilt auction or raffle; the second piece will be auctioned at this year’s conference. Enter by 3:00 p.m. on Wednesday, April 6, at the Foundation table in the registration area. Enter your best t-shirts, jackets, vests, sweatshirts, caps, bucket hats, or any other staff or institutional sportswear in this classic conference event. You will gain recognition for your program and institution while benefiting the NIRSA Foundation.

Please note: New categories this year!

- Intramurals
- Fitness & Leisure
- Outdoor
- Sport Clubs
- Humorous
- Staff (i.e., lifeguards', instructors' & officials' shirts)
- Commercial Sponsorship*
- One color screen (includes all categories except commercial)

*Any shirt with commercial markings or one that has been subsidized by a commercial organization must be entered in the Commercial Sponsorship category.

Bring your completed entry forms with you for a quick check in. Forms will be available soon online at: http://www.nirsanet/education/conference/shirts.htm. Entries will be judged on originality, content composition, layout of design and overall visual appeal.

Entries will be accepted at the Foundation Table in the Registration area on Tuesday, April 5, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. and Wednesday, April 6, 8 a.m.-3 p.m.

2004 CGA Tournament Nets Funds for Foundation

Despite snow flurries and windy conditions, Penn State golfers Kyle Tyson and Drew Guaraldo shot an eight under score of 64 to win the 2004 National Collegiate Golf Championship (NCGC) December 3-5 at Badlands Golf Course in Las Vegas, Nevada. The two-person scramble event, sponsored by the Collegiate Golf Alliance (CGA) showcased over twenty-five teams representing seventeen different colleges and universities.

As the 2004 Champions, Tyson and Guaraldo received a pair of round trip tickets from Southwest Airlines and a full return package to Las Vegas and an automatic berth to the 2005 Championships to defend their title.

The tournament was organized and facilitated by the Collegiate Golf Alliance (CGA). This year, the CGA was made up of over 800 golfers representing 90 different colleges and universities. Proceeds from the tournament benefited the NIRSA Foundation, a not-for-profit organization that provides opportunities for students through professional development, research, scholarships, and educational resources.

The CGA currently serves as the premier on-line golf events and registration company for over 1,400 colleges and universities across the United States.

My Regional Workshop Wrap Up

This year I had the distinct pleasure of traveling to all the different NIRSA workshops. I really enjoyed meeting new colleagues, learning more about the various regions and, of course, socializing with old friends. With only four more journeys to make before the National Conference, I would like to take this time to reflect on the very good times that I have had from one part of the country to the other.

In May, I took my first ever trip to Chicago, I was very impressed with downtown Chicago and the Big Ten Conference was enjoyable. The tours of the University of Chicago, DePaul University and Northwestern University were enlightening, and an included riverboat ride was relaxing and fun.

In October, I took my first ever trip to Stillwater, Oklahoma (and to Oklahoma for that matter). It was Homecoming at Oklahoma State University and the atmosphere was festive. A “Texas Hold’Em” Tournament at the Big 12/Region IV Workshop seemed to be a big hit! I especially enjoyed the hypnotist.

In November, I started with a trip to Charlotte, North Carolina, which was short and very sweet. During the Region II Workshop, I spent an extremely pleasant five hours on the golf course (it might have been longer) and it rained almost the entire time. I had wonderful company, a lot of laughs and I was grateful that my partner was not looking to win any prizes. Sorry, Matt! At the great social I enjoyed again meeting new people and talking with old friends.

I continued my November travel for the first time ever to Syracuse, New York. Did you all know it gets cold there in November? I had a great time at the Region I Conference! I got to watch Syracuse and Princeton play basketball. Word to the wise: Don’t sit in front of Eric Stein when Princeton is playing! I feared for my life at times!

The last of my travels in 2004 took me right back to my backyard—Tempe, Arizona. The Region VI Workshop is always done right! We had a great dinner at a venue that overlooked the Tempe city lights and then a really fun evening at a Piano Bar. And yes, I got embarrassed. It was a nice way to end my travels.

I would like to thank all the regional hosts for including me when they could during the workshops, for their kind words and, of course, for their great hospitality. I truly have had very memorable experiences everywhere I went, most recently while serving as a host for the Big 10/Pac-10 Directors’ meetings in Corvallis. I look forward to attending the Region III Lead On, the Region IV Lead On, and the 14th Annual Emerging Recreational Sports Leaders Conference.

See you all in Orlando!!

Fellow Students: Nominate a Mentor, Attend ERSL

Last chance to submit a Horace Moody Award nomination—January 31st

Dear NIRSA Students,

There are very few moments when we have the opportunity to recognize the professionals of our association who have helped us succeed. When you nominate someone for the Horace Moody Award, you are saying more than thank you—you are recognizing a mentor for taking the time to make a difference. This week, today, take time to nominate a professional. Download the nomination form and mail, fax or email your nomination to me before the January 31st deadline. All you have to do is summarize why you feel the person deserves this student development award. Do not let this opportunity pass you by!

On the NIRSA Network visit:
http://www.nirsa.org/secure/crs/moody_process.htm for information and the nominating form.

The Emerging Recreational Sports Leaders Conference (ERSL) is approaching quickly: February 18-19! As the holiday season ends and the annual conference is around the corner, attending ERSL, a Student Lead On, and making contact with your regional representatives becomes more important. The Regional and National newsletters will be online soon with the latest information updates.

Attending ERSL or a Student Lead On is a wonderful opportunity for many reasons. Here are my top reasons to attend:

1. Networking: There will be people in attendance from all over the region; you will meet many students and professionals in your field.
2. Practice: ERSL or a Lead On is a great opportunity to experience the conference atmosphere without the pressures of the size of the annual conference or of looking for an internship, a GA position or a job.
3. Professional Development: ERSL and the Lead On will offer sessions and roundtables providing the opportunity for you to grow professionally and personally.
4. New Opportunities: Step up and become a leader, lead a presentation, set a goal to participate in a roundtable: find that open door!
5. FUN! Recreation is what we are all about!

Please contact me with any questions you have about becoming more involved in your NIRSA!

The NIRSA Partnership with USTA in Action:
Court Curriculum

In Pennsylvania and Florida, two collegians make tennis a major deal for their classmates.

By Cynthia Cantrell
Reprinted with permission from the November/December 2004 issue of USTA Magazine

Growing up in Downingtown, Pa., Justin DePietropalo learned to play tennis from his dad at the local public park. He would end up joining his high school team, playing one year at the varsity level. Naturally, he wanted to stay involved with the sport after enrolling in Pennsylvania State University in the fall of 2000.

"Penn State recruits its varsity team, so it's tough to get on. They take maybe one walk-on a year," says DePietropalo, a 22-year-old marketing major who graduated last May. Around the same time DePietropalo was searching for an alternative, an older student was forming a student-governed tennis club on campus. DePietropalo signed up, and remained an active leader in the group through his senior year.

Word of the club spread fast. DePietropalo says the club's growth spurted from about 20 to 150 members in a two-year span was fueled by word of mouth and the website he designed in his freshman year (www.clubs.psu.edu/uptennis). "Not everyone can, or wants, to play at the varsity level," DePietropalo says. "With the club, people can play once a week or five times a week, at whatever level they want."

Today, the Penn State Tennis Club—named the USTA Middle States 2003 Organization of the Year—participates in two leagues, in addition to hosting tournaments, biweekly tennis instruction for beginners and a "Late Night" round robin that provides an alternative to the bar scene on Friday and Saturday nights.

"A few years ago, organized tennis for the general student body at Penn State did not exist. Due to the hard work of Justin and some other students, it has exploded," says Eric Dove, supervisor of the Penn State Tennis Center.

A thousand miles down the Eastern seaboard, 21-year-old senior Brent Boostrom of Orlando, Fla., faced a similar challenge at the University of Central Florida (UCF).

A multi-sport athlete, Boostrom turned to tennis in his junior year of high school after breaking his arm twice while playing baseball and soccer.

After arriving at UCF as a freshman in the fall of 2001, Boostrom joined the UCF Tennis Club, founded a year earlier by another student, and served as historian. He has been president of the club since his junior year.

Despite the difficulty of sharing the school's six tennis courts with the varsity team and student body, the club recruited 100 members in less than a year, plus another 250 in the intramural USA Team Tennis League, of which Boostrom serves as director. It did so through word-of-mouth, a redesigned website (www.knightstennis.com), weekly lessons for beginners, and a new round-robin doubles format. Divided into competitive and recreational levels, the tennis club also hosts tournaments and a summer league.

"Brent has done a tremendous job as president of the tennis club, coordinator of intramural tennis and as the newly elected president of the UCF Sport Club Council, overseeing 30 sports," says Jim Wilkening, associate director of the UCF Recreation and Wellness Center. Crediting Boostrom's dedication with the recent construction of a new championship tennis court at UCF, Wilkening adds, "Brent and his predecessor have helped tennis to have a huge presence on campus. They've taken tennis to a whole new level here."

Just as important as the competition, says Boostrom, is the players' commitment to volunteerism, which includes providing free, weekly tennis lessons and tutoring for about 50 First Serve program participants in Eatonville, Fla. According to Jodi Manning, coordinator of Team Tennis for USA Tennis Florida, the students' volunteer efforts are admirable. "It's really nice of them to take the time away from their schoolwork and extracurricular activities to do community service," Manning says.

Another social outlet for students is the USA Team Tennis National Campus Championships for club and intramural tennis teams. The fifth annual event, held in March 2004 at the Florida Tennis Center in Daytona Beach, featured a record 40 teams from 33 schools—including Penn State and UCF. In 2005, the event will be held in San Diego from March 10 to 12. "The nationals are awesome because after your match, you get to hang out with kids from across the country," says Boostrom.
“You get to find out what different campuses are like, and how different tennis programs are run."

“It’s all about providing high-quality experiences for students through their college years,” says Dr. Kent J. Blumenthal, executive director of the National Intramural-Recreational Sports Association.

“Tennis sport clubs are just another area that we’ve seen tremendous growth in,” he adds. “Campus recreational sports directors—including Tom Lovins at Penn State and Willie Helping at Central Florida—are recognizing this trend and are offering more team-based tennis programs nationwide. It’s all about connecting and socializing—and making students excited so that they want to play—while supporting the goals of higher education.”

According to David Benjamin, executive director of the Intercollegiate Tennis Association, DePietropaolo and Boostrom are great role models for other students interested in strengthening both college-sponsored intramural programs and student-governed tennis clubs. There are 300,000 high school tennis players in the country, he says, but only about 15,000 college varsity slots available.

“The key is the tennis sport club,” says Glenn Arrington, the USTA’s product manager of Adult/Senior Tennis. “The collegiate tennis sport club is a perfect retention tool for keeping former high school varsity players in the game through college, as well as introducing tennis in a fun social format. The key to the sport club is that they can be built to meet the needs of the student body. It’s where the action is.” (See “How to Form a Campus Tennis Program,” below.)

Although neither DePietropaolo nor Boostrom, a management information systems major, has firm career plans, both say the experience of running a tennis club will be an asset as they make the transition into the business world.

“It takes a lot of time,” Boostrom says, “but I wouldn’t give it up for anything.”

How to Form a Campus Tennis Program

Interested in getting a USA Team Tennis program started on your campus? The USTA, in cooperation with the National Intramural-Recreational Sports Association (NIRSA) and the Intercollegiate Tennis Association (ITA), has resources to help students, intramural directors and varsity coaches form campus tennis programs.

A free starter kit offers step-by-step instructions and customizable fliers and other marketing materials. Equipment giveaways donated by Prince and Wilson can be used to generate excitement about tennis programs during a “tennis on campus day” event.

Students: For a USA Team Tennis League get-started kit, tennis gear and information about program funding opportunities, call your USTA section campus contact listed at www.nirsainfo/spoend/tennis/sectionrep.htm.

Varsity coaches: For those interested in implementing USA Team Tennis Leagues, visit www.itatennis.com.
