

Interviewing Resources

<http://tools.monster.com/virtualinterviews/random/>

This is a random question generator on Monster.com. Keeps you guessing!

<http://interview.monster.com/archives/>

This was a great selection of articles on informational interviewing, questions, and interview fashion.

<http://interview.monster.com/articles/sweat/>

This is an outline to help you critique your interview performance. Gives you immediate feedback on your interview, but also helps you plan for the next.

<http://www.quintcareers.com/intvres.html>

This is the introductory link for the interviewing resources on the quintcareers.com site. This is an exceptional resource of questions, interviewing techniques, tutorials and questions (with possible answers). Great resource for an idea or two!

http://www.quintcareers.com/interview_question_database/

This is the database for the interview questions. Over 100 questions including traditional and behavioral questions are included here. Questions are given with "excellent" sample responses.

http://www.quintcareers.com/asking_interview_questions.html

Interviewing is a two-way street. This is a list of questions that you might ask during your interview to help you make the decision whether this is the place for you.

<http://www.quintcareers.com/interviewing-dos-donts.html>

This is a good list of do's and do not's.

<http://cornell.placementmanual.com/interviewing/interviewing-02.html>

This is a thorough look at every aspect of job interviewing, from the Career Services office at Cornell University.

<http://www.best-interview-strategies.com/strategies.html>

From pre-interview preparation to post-interview review, this site includes tips, suggestions and questions.

http://www.holycross.edu/departments/dos/website/career_planning/interviews.htm

Another great university career center site.

Don't forget to check your own university for on-campus resources.